

Integrated Approach to Proxy Voting

We are long-term investors, with an average holding period of 7+ years. We believe that strong, ethical management and good governance drive long-term business value creation. Our proxy voting process is unique, and reflects the level of importance we place on our role as stewards of client capital.

Key Attributes of Our Process:

- Equity research analysts are responsible for reviewing and recommending all proxy votes
- Each proxy is discussed with the Investment Strategy Committee (ISC)
- Decisions are made by the investment professionals
- Engagement, when necessary, is led by the research analysts

Our preference is for engaged dialogue with management, and if necessary boards of directors, in order to improve governance and business practices. For this reason, we are often viewed as a credible shareholder with whom managements seek counsel. This has two important benefits. First, it enhances our ability to influence change over time. And secondly, it leads to deeper integration of ESG factors within our investment process.

Observations

Given our focus on building concentrated portfolios comprised of high-quality companies, the frequency with which we vote against management may seem high on the surface. Typically, the key area of contention between our vote and management's recommendation is on the alignment of compensation with long-term shareholder value. Examples include opposing the election of members of the Compensation Committee in cases where we see compensation as excessive or misaligned compared to long-term value creation. One measure of the success of our long-term engagement on the issue of compensation has been the decreased use of options and increased use of performance-vesting instruments amongst companies in our portfolios.

Jarislowsky Fraser believes that management and director compensation is a critical aspect of a company's governance. Pay decisions are one of the most direct and visible ways for shareholders to assess the performance of the board of directors. Boards must strike a balance between compensation packages that are required to attract, retain and motivate qualified executives with the efficient use of capital in the business. Excessive compensation reduces shareholder value. Boards should also seek to align the interests of management and directors through compensation arrangements that are linked to the achievement of long-term company success.

Shareholder Proposals

As described in our Proxy Voting Policy, we take a principles-based, not rules-based, approach to assessing shareholder proposals. Rather than prescribing specific behaviors, we favour proposals that focus on driving accountability and creating feedback mechanisms on matters material to our investment thesis. In 2019 we supported 33% of shareholder proposals, similar to the rate of support in 2018 (35%).

Our voting record is evidence of our thoughtful, principles-based approach that leverages our analysts' in-depth knowledge of the companies in our portfolios to carefully consider the specific merits of each proposal. We support well written proposals that call for action or for disclosure that are non-proprietary and are material to our investment thesis and assessment of the long-term resilience of a business.

Examples:

- We supported a shareholder resolution calling for Oracle to report on its gender pay gap because we felt that Oracle lagged its peers in addressing gender pay disparity, and this could put Oracle at a competitive disadvantage in recruiting and retaining employees.
- However, we voted against a similar proposal for Alphabet because the company already takes a robust approach to pay gaps, using its leading AI skills to search for and correct bias in its pay, and publish this results annually. We did vote for another shareholder proposal calling for Alphabet to assess the feasibility of including sustainability as a performance measure for senior executive compensation because Alphabet does not include performance metrics in its compensation structure and, especially given the growing importance of social issues for the company, this would be a step towards a more sophisticated goals-oriented compensation plan.
- We supported a proposal for Chevron to report on plans to reduce its carbon footprint to align with Paris Agreement goals because we felt that the company has disclosure gaps and this report would provide material information useful for investment decisions.
- However, we voted against a proposal that Shell set and publish targets for GHG emissions because the company already sets robust and detailed targets and has industry-leading disclosure and policies.
- In some cases, we supported the general spirit of a proposal but did not feel it was appropriately worded to attain its intended outcome. For instance, we felt that a shareholder proposal for Restaurant Brands International to report on minimum requirements and standards related to workforce practices did not adequately consider the potential legal ramifications or practical application in a franchise business model. We instead engaged with the company to propose a principles-based approach, better aligned with the reality of the value creation model of the business. Management was receptive and we will continue to pursue this matter.
